Description

Air Arms TX200 & TX200HC MK3 Hunter Carbine Spring Air Rifle hose who prefer their air rifles to be self-powered and free of compressed air tanks and charging connectors, also require top quality and that's why so many choose the Air Arms TX200 range. These superbly made underlever rifles have forged their reputation as world beaters within the demands of top level competition in hunting fields around the world. The smooth, full-power, consistent shooting qualities of the TX200 MkIII are a product of several features working together. These include a balanced mainspring, guide and piston system, which runs on synthetic bearings to reduce friction. Less energy lost to friction means higher efficiency, easier cocking and reduced recoil. These are the qualities of an expertly tuned rifle and the TX200 MkIII comes with these benefits as standard. Expertly finished, polished and blacked, the MkIII's action sits in an elegant, fully-chequered sporter stock, completing this rifle's potent blend of performance and style. The TX200 HC is a shorter and lighter version of the TX200. Bull barrel with a threaded insert, which allows the fitting of an internal or external silencer. Fitted with a knurled cocking aid as standard. For a short, manoevrable high performance rifle, you would be hard pressed to find an equal. Excellent hunting rifle, with the included internal plenum silencer (and option to add an external) this can be a seriously quiet rifle also. IMPORTANT! – Sales of Airguns: Please note
